PUBLIC WELCOME AT STATE BOARD OF INVESTMENT MEETING

PHOENIX, AZ – Arizona Treasurer Eileen I. Klein is inviting the public to attend the State Board of Investment (BOI) meeting on Thursday, August 30, at the Treasury Office. The monthly meeting reports on investment activity, anticipated impacts on revenues, and the market outlook ahead.

The meeting will offer detailed presentations on July investment performance, earnings distributions, and operating balances for the Land Endowment (for schools), and on money invested on behalf of state agencies and local governments. As Chair of the Board, Treasurer Klein recently introduced a new feature to the BOI meeting; an outside business expert offering an external prospective on changing economic or market conditions and how those forces may impact the Treasury and the state economy. This month's featured guest is a local economist.

"We'll review recent news on an Endowment milestone; something the education community will find of interest as most Endowment distributions go to public schools," Treasurer Klein said. "And since the money in Treasury state agency and local government accounts comes from Arizona taxpayers, they have a right to know if their dollars are being invested wisely; I invited all to attend to get their questions answered," Klein added.
